

A New Look at The Book of Esther

Willie Martin

Due to misinterpretation, the controversial Book of Esther has been a puzzle to many people. Some Bible scholars consider it to be uninspired, even having gone so far as to state it never should have been included in the Sacred Canon. Written approximately 485-465 B.C., the term God does not appear anywhere in the book.

However, no story in all sacred writ demonstrates more clearly the providential care of Yahweh for His people. It would appear to be a story about Persians and Jews, but a closer look reveals that the people called Jews by the translators of this book are in no sense the people we know as Jews today.

So first of let's take a look at the characters involved in this drama, the principal object of which appears to be to reveal the work and nature of those "who say they are Jews, and are not but are of the synagogue of Satan." (Revelation 2:9; 3:9) The scene is laid in Shushan (or Susa), the summer palace of Persian kings, located about 200 miles east of Babylon, and the principal characters are:

- 1). Ahasuerus, who (according to Halley, Moffatt and others) may have been Xerxes or Artaxerxes the Great, King of Persia.
- 2). Vashti, the beautiful Persian queen who refused to be debased, for which she was deposed.
- 3). Haman, the Agagite Prime Minister, a member of the hybrid race we know today as Edomite Jews, who are a mixture descended from Cain; Esau, father of the Edomites, and his Canaanite wives; Judah and his Canaanite wife, through their hybrid son Shelah; and the Samaritans who were deported to Judah from Assyria. (2 Kings 17:24)
- 4). Mordecai, the Israelite of the tribe of Benjamin, who had been deported from his native land and arrived in Babylon with Jeconiah (margin Jehoiachin), king of Judah. Babylon having been subsequently conquered by Medo-Persia, he had become a Persian subject. (Esther 2:5-8; 2 Kings 24:15)
- 5). Esther, the beautiful orphaned Israelite cousin of Mordecai, whom he had reared as his own daughter.

So we find Esther and Mordecai, the Chosen People of Yahweh (Anglo-Saxon, Germanic, Scandinavian, Celtic, Nordic and kindred people) victims of a plot for extinction on the part of Satan (through his offspring agent, Haman) with Ahasuerus, the king, squarely in the middle as a pawn.

Now with these facts before us, let us take a new look at this much-maligned book, and see if we can find the reason Yahweh has allowed it to be included in the Sacred Scriptures. Read the book again and wherever the appellation Jew is found substitute the correct term Judahite or Israelite. In place of Agagite substitute Agagite Jew, and the book of Esther will become a new book. Before your eyes will unfold a drama of such magnitude as to stagger the imagination, and you will be proud of your Israelites kinfolk, Esther and Mordecai.

The book opens with an account of a six-month long drunken brawl given by the Persian king for his nobles, at the end of which Queen Vashti was summoned to appear before the king (purportedly in the nude) so that he might display her beauty. The queen, a chaste, honorable and modest woman, refused to appear naked before a bunch of inebriated drunks, and so sacrificed her crown. So, as they do nowadays in Washington, they wrote a special law for the occasion, binding all Persian women in abject slavery to their husbands. No Women's Lib here! The decree was issued by a stupefied bunch of politicians too drunk to know right from wrong, so Vashti was deposed and her property stipulated to be given to another.

After an exhaustive search, the most beautiful virgins in the kingdom were brought into the king's harem, among whom was Esther, the "far and beautiful" cousin of Mordecai. And there is something singular about the word translated "fair" in this study. When used in connection with Vashti, the Hebrew word "towb," Pronounced tobe (Strong's Concordance: #2896) was used; (Esther 1:11) but when it came to describing Esther; (Esther 1:11) an altogether different Hebrew word, "Yahfeh," pronounced Yaw-feh (Strong's Concordance: #3303) was used.

Esther 1:11: Fair: Strong's Concordance: #2896 towb (tobe); from 2895; good (as an adjective) in the widest sense; used likewise as a noun, both in the masculine and the feminine, the singular and the plural (good, a good or good thing, a good man or woman; the good, goods or good things, good men or women), also as an adverb (well): KJV-- beautiful, best, better, bountiful, cheerful, at ease, X fair (word), (be in) favor, fine, glad, good (deed, -lier, -liest, -ly, -ness, -s), graciously, joyful, kindly, kindness, liketh (best), loving, merry, X most, pleasant, + pleaseth, pleasure, precious, prosperity, ready, sweet, wealth, welfare, (be) well ([-favoured]).

Esther 2:7: Fair: Strong's Concordance: #3303 yapheh (yaw-feh'); from 3302; beautiful (literally or figuratively): -+beautiful, beauty, comely, fair (-est, one), + goodly, pleasant, well.

In looking further we find that in one instance only, in Ezekiel 31, is this word used to describe anyone other than Israelites:

- 1). Sarah, who the Egyptians saw was "fair," or different from them. (Genesis 12:14)
- 2). Rachel, wife of Jacob (Israel), mother of all Israelites. (Genesis 29:17)
- 3). Joseph, son of Jacob. (Genesis 29:17)
- 4). David, a Judahite. (1 Samuel 17:42)
- 5). Tamar, daughter of David. (2 Samuel 13:1)
- 6). Abigail, the Shunamite, of the tribe of Issachar. (1 Kings 1:4)
- 8). Mt. Zion, the Israel bride. (Psalm 48:2)

9). The Bride of Christ (Israel, not the church, as chapter heading indicates). (Song of Solomon 6:10)

10). Israel, bride of Yahshua (Christ). (Jeremiah 11:16)

11). Prophecy of Israel in the end time. (Amos 8:13)

Therefore on this basis alone we could rightly conclude that Esther was a beautiful white Israelite, and not the dark-complexioned hybrid seed of Satan we know as Jews today. The root word of “Jew” as used in the book of Esther is “Yehuwdiy,” pronounced yeh-hoo-dee; (Strong’s Concordance: #3064) a Judahite; descendant of Jehudah, i.e., Judah.

Jew: Strong’s Concordance: #3064 Yehuwdiy (yeh-hoo-dee’); patronymically from 3063; a Jehudite (i.e. Judaite or Jew), or descendant of Jehudah (i.e. Judah): KJV-- Jew.

The tribe of Benjamin, Mordecai’s tribe, stayed with the tribe of Judah and became part of the Kingdom of Judah. The name Jew in this context (and contrary to its present meaning) could properly be applied to a member of the kingdom of Judah, after the separation of Judah and Benjamin from the 10 tribes of Israel proper. True Judahites are Israelites, as all natural born Ohioans are Americans, but not all Israelites are Judahites, as not all Americans are not Ohioans. Judah was but one of 13 tribes of the nation of Israel. As Ohio is but one state of the United States of America. The same is true of the tribe of Benjamin.

Also, it is noteworthy that the term of Jew did not appear in early manuscripts, but was placed in our Bible by translators in the 17th century. An interesting item also is the fact that the tribe of Benjamin fathered eleven of the disciples, as well as the Apostle Paul. Judas Iscariot (is Kerioth, or a man of Kerioth in southern Judea), the twelfth disciple, was descended from Cain, whose father was Satan. (John 6:70-71)

During Esther’s year of preparation in the harem, Mordecai discovered a plot against the life of King Ahasuerus, which he disclosed to Esther. At the first opportunity Esther revealed to the king the assassination plot, and the conspirators were hanged. Haman, who previously wormed his way into government (Jews have a curious faculty for doing just that), had now been appointed prime minister.

When Esther’s turn came to be sent to the king, he promptly fell deeply in love with her, and shortly thereafter crowned her queen in place of Vashti.

In Chapter 3 we find Mordecai, the Israelite from the Kingdom of Judah, refusing the idolatrous adoration demanded by the obnoxious Agagite Jew, Haman. Shortly after the exodus Yahweh had commanded His Israel people, “Thou shalt have no other gods before me, neither shalt thou bow down thyself to them,” (Paraphrasing Exodus 20:3-5) and this pure-blooded Israelite could not stoop to idol worship in rendering to a son of Satan the worship that belonged to Yahweh alone. Here is demonstrated the enmity, placed there by the Almighty, (Genesis 3:15) between the two seed lines.

Haman, now prime minister, who evidently made his fortune in gambling, (Esther 3:7) was a descendant of Agag, the king of the Amalekites. Amalek was the grandson of Esau, father of the Edomite Jews who, together with the Khazar Jews, brought Communism to Russia.

Even the name Esau means “red.” Amalek was a grandson to Esau through Eliphaz and his Canaanite concubine Timna. (Genesis 36:12) Agag, from whom Haman had descended, was their king at the time of King Saul. Agag was hewn in pieces by the prophet Samuel after King Saul had disobeyed Yahweh’s command of extermination against them. (I Samuel 15:18-34) but in Exodus 17:8 we find Israel already fighting with Amalek, and they have never stopped to this day. Because of the diabolical attack by Amalek upon His people, who were in no position at the time to defend themselves, Yahweh said He would utterly destroy the name of Amalek from under heaven, (Exodus 17:14) and He will.

This controversy is Yahweh’s, not Mordecai’s, not Esters, nor yet ours today. Of no people other than Amalekites (Red Communists, the people with whom we have “detente”) do we find Yahweh declaring from His throne that He will wage war against them from generation to generation in behalf of His Israel people. The final conflict and overthrow of these evil ones is described in Ezekiel 38, 39 and the Book of Zachariah. These Amalekites dwelt in the same valley (Numbers 14:25) with the Canaanites (who had integrated with the seed of Cain, whose father was Nachash, translated “serpent”), with whom they had intermarried down through the centuries. In fact, they were the Pharisees in the time of Yahshua (Christ), and are the Zionist Edomite, Khazar Jews we know today.

This was a child of Satan, and Mordecai could no more fall down and worship him than could The Master Himself, when confronted with the same temptation. ^[1] Yeashua plainly stated that these were Satan’s children (progeny) in Matthew 13:28; John 6:70; 8:37-47, and so did Paul in Acts 13:6-10, John the Baptist called them “generation (children, offspring or progeny) of vipers” in Matthew 3:7, and John the Revelator quotes Yeashua as saying, they “say they are Jews but are not, but are the synagogue of Satan.” ^[2]

So this child of Satan, Haman, hatched a plot to eradicate not only his enemy, Mordecai, but most of the race of Israel was then living in Persia. But it was beneath his dignity to murder Mordecai himself, so in true Jewish fashion he seeks a “front” in the person of King Ahasuerus to do his dirty work.

By subtlety and palaver Ahasuerus is won over and makes the pogrom legal by giving his permission for the slaughter of Israelites, little dreaming what he is doing. Like some politicians in Washington today, “they know not what they do.” To his credit, be it said, he did turn down a bribe of several million dollars offered by Haman for his services.

Today we have a liberal press, the NAACP, the ACLU, the ADL, the JDL, Women’s Lib, CFR, composed of the Bilderberger money magnates and their motley crew, David Rockefeller’s insane Trilateral Commission (makers of presidents), the CIA, ATF, FBI, DEA, a Brainwashed Court, the United Nations wooden horse, plenty of loudmouthed politicians, together with the prostitute movie and television industry, all of whom (knowingly or otherwise) do the bidding of this International Jewish Cabal.

When they say “Jump!” Congress retorts, “How high?” Now as then, this seed of Satan in our midst still seek to annihilate the “People of the Book.” The plot for our destruction was laid over 200 years ago in Europe by the Illuminati, and detailed in The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion (Satan’s Bible; more on this later), since repudiated by the lying Jews. However, after exhaustive investigation, which took 10 years and millions of dollars, Henry Ford stated in his book “The International Jew” that if the Protocols are not genuine, they truly describe what is going on in the world today; and they still do.

Haman's decree has gone forth and is being implemented through unConstitutional legislation and Executive Orders carried out by an arrogant bureaucratic army of locusts in Washington, who have devoured the vine of Yahweh's planting and stripped it bare. The slithering giant octopus of International Jewry has spread its serpentine arms throughout every Christian nation in the world today, and anyone who dares disturb its Satanic programs is enveloped in inky blackness, spewed forth by its slimy tentacles known as The Anti-Defamation league and Jewish Defense League.

These anti-Christ Jews know who we are, and they know who they are, and are determined to destroy us by any means possible, i.e., an unConstitutional Babylonian Federal Reserve money system, confiscatory taxes collected by a highhanded band of thugs known as the IRS, harassment and illegal jailing of patriots by the LEAA, FBI, DEA, BATF, inflation, miscegenation; Regional Government, the FDA, OSHA, HEW and all of the other alphabet agencies, together with insane busing to achieve race mixing; pornography, drugs, abortion, movies and television reeking of propaganda and hate toward the White Race, ceaselessly ground out by the amoral Hollywood brothel, to name a few.

They want no part of race mixing themselves (Witness the expulsion of Negro Jews from Israel, yet they are a part mixture of the black race and all the other races on earth), yet force it down the throats of white American Israelites through unConstitutional Supreme Court decisions and their lackeys in the judiciary. Jews are the world's greatest segregationists; for Jews only, that is.

But let us remember that the corruption and tyranny we Israelites endure today is the result of our own national sin, in our rejection of the Laws of Yahweh, among which are His Laws forbidding usury and race mixing, as well as His sacred decree of death (Not prison) for ALL murderers, rapists, and homosexuals. This cruel despotism is permitted by Yahweh to awaken us to our identity, and responsibility as the witnesses and servants of the Most High. He says we are His battleaxe, but we have reneged on our responsibilities, even making alliances with godless, heathen nations, who are His avowed enemies, as well as ours. Today America meekly slips its head into the noose prepared by the Haman cabal, and the trapdoor is about to be sprung.

However, these Persian Israelites still had a God in heaven Whom they had not forgotten, and to Whom they turned in their darkest hour. O, that America would do likewise in the present midnight hour.

When the decree for slaughter was made known Mordecai immediately contracted Esther, urging her to use her influence with the king to save the Israel people, then donned sackcloth and began fasting and weeping before his Maker. O, Israelite Americans, pray not to Congress but to Yahweh for deliverance. In Him is our salvation.

Although the term God is not mentioned anywhere throughout the book, to whom were these Israelites praying? They had already proven they were not idolaters, so it was to no heathen god they cried. To whom else could they go? If these Bible tokens of repentance were not put into practice to reach the ear of the Almighty, why were they going through the motions? Esther said she was depending on these very things for success with the king, and was willing to lay her life on the line on the strength of her faith. Not only her crown, but her very life was at stake.

After three days of fasting and prayer, Esther invited the king and the wicked Haman to a banquet, and later a second banquet. At each of these banquets the king offered to bestow upon Esther anything her heart desired.

However, Esther refused to make any request of the king until the second banquet. Knowing the king loved her above all others, Esther depended on that fact, together with the power of Yahweh in response to the weeping and fasting of herself and Mordecai (Doubtless joined by other Israelites), to touch the king's heart and put him in the proper frame of mind to grant her request.

Upon leaving the first banquet the Jew Haman passed Mordecai, the Israelite, who further infuriated Haman by refusing to "rise and tremble" as he passed by. (Matthew 4:9) Haman was now riding on top of the world, or so he thought, and Mordecai was the only fly in the ointment. Isn't it a shame that the Israelites are, and always have been, the only obstacle preventing the Kehilla from their determined takeover of the world? These Israelites must be gotten rid of by fair means or foul.

But there was no sleep that night for King Ahasuerus; having signed the decree, like Darius the night Daniel was in the lion's den, he probably waked the floor for a while and then, to pass away the long night hours, commanded that the book of records of the kingdom be brought and read to him. When the part was read where Mordecai had reported the assassination plot and saved his life, the king was chagrined to learn no reward had ever been bestowed upon this brave man, and resolved to remedy it.

By this time morning had dawned and the now utterly frustrated Haman betook himself to the king's chambers, to ask permission of the king to hang Mordecai on some gallows he had secretly prepared. When the serpent showed its slimy character in, the king's greeting was, "What should be done unto the man whom the king delights to honor?" Like a true son of Agag, this wily Jew thought, "Who but me could the king delight to honor?" So he answered that the man should be clothed in royal apparel, paraded through the streets on the royal horse, with the royal crown on his head, accompanied by the blowing of trumpets and heralds proclaiming, "This is the man whom the king has delighted to honor."

"Great!" replied the king, "Take all these things you have mentioned and hurry down to the gate where Mordecai had his office, and do all these things for him." What disappointment for this child of Satan! What mortification when this Rich Man (Jew) sees poor beggar Lazarus (Anglo-Saxon Israel) in Abraham's bosom and himself thrust out. (Luke 19:29) What irony!

Greatly dejected Haman returns home with his head covered, an Oriental sign of mourning, where he finds a Job's Comforter in the person of his psychic wife, who assured him that if he had begun to fall before the seed of Jacob, nothing in this world could save him. The next day, while still pouring out his woes to his friends, one of the king's chamberlains arrived to conduct him to the second banquet hosted by Esther, attended by her, the king and Haman only.

After a bountiful repast, with much wine, the king again asked Esther to state her petition; whereupon Esther reveals her Israelite heritage, hitherto unknown to the king, and makes a dramatic appeal for her own life, as well as the lives of her people, who have been singled out for slaughter and extermination through the decree engineered by Haman.

When Ahasuerus discovers the life of his beautiful queen, whom he dearly loves, is in danger he is stunned and asks who is the instigator of this horrible conspiracy. When Esther points an accusing finger across the table at the Edomite Jew, Haman, and openly accuses him of this treason, Haman turns pale and begins to tremble. Ahasuerus, shaking with wrath, rises from the table and hurriedly stalks out into the garden.

Finally, controlling his emotions, he returns to the banquet hall to find Haman prostrated on the same couch with Esther, pleading for his life. In a rage now uncontrollable, Ahasuerus accuses Haman of attempting to violate his queen in his own house. Instantly the bodyguards overpower Haman and cover his head, at the same time reporting of the gallows Haman had secretly prepared for the murder of Mordecai. The bodyguards commanded by the king to hang Haman on the gallows already prepared, proceed forth to carry out the sentence. "The wicked is snared in the work of his own hands." (Psalm 9:16)

The king then assures Esther Haman has been hanged and, to placate her, bestows upon her all the property of Haman, which must have been many millions, considering the amount of the bribe (Of perhaps $15 million or more) which Haman offered to the king in payment for the death decree to the Israelites. But Esther would not be placated and still pleaded for the life of her people. Since the decree for the massacre could not be reversed, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, Ahasuerus could only give permission for a subsequent decree, permitting the Israelites to resist and slay all who would attack them, with the added privilege of seizing their property, as the former decree had done. When the slaughter was over, 75,000 enemies of Israel had been slain, 500 in the king's palace alone, but the proud Israelites disdained to take any of the spoil of their enemies (This the Jews would never have done). (Esther 9:10)

Thus originated the Feast of Purim, which today ought rightly to be celebrated by Anglo-Saxon Israelites, but which has been appropriated by the Jews for their purposes in publicizing the myth that they are Israelites, the Chosen People. We Israelites are the ones who should be giving thanks to Yahweh for once more, in this instance, having frustrated the plans of Satan for the extermination of the Israelites, the White Anglo-Saxon, Germanic, Scandinavian, Celtic, Nordic, and kindred people of the Book then living in Persia. This feast the Jews have appropriated for their own use from Anglo-Saxon Israel, together with our name (Israel), our money, our government, our pure bloodlines by integration, our children by busing, by miscegenation, our youth by pornography, drugs, our noble sons on the battlefields of their diabolical wars, and now our unborn babies by abortion.

But when the slaughter was all over, Mordecai the Israelite was elevated to the position of prime minister in Haman's stead, and there was feasting and joy as the people gathered together in all their cities throughout the province to celebrate. Their enemies were slain and the fear of these Children of the Most High fell on the Persians until many of them became converted to the Hebrew faith.

As then in Persia we are today, in America and all the Anglo-Saxon countries of the globe, including Rhodesia and South Africa, under sentence of slavery and race extermination by our masters, the seed of the serpent. The Hamans in Washington, Tel Aviv, London and Moscow see nothing in the way of word conquest except the White, Anglo-Saxon race of people, so "Mordecai" has got to go!

But Israelites, take courage, for “when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh.” (Luke 21:26) The tares are not being gathered together in bundles for burning, and soon the decree for their annihilation will go forth with a trumpet from the skies. The activities of modern Jewry are fulfilling the words of Luke 19:27: “But these mine enemies, which would not that I should reign over them, bring them hither, and slay them before me.”

It is not the return of the Jews to the land of their forefathers that draws them to Palestine, because many of their forefathers never saw Palestine. If they were returning to the land of their forefathers, many would be returning to the land of the Khazar kingdom in Russia from whence they came. Rather, it is the return of the serpent seed responsible for the crucifixion of our Redeemer (Who said, “Let His blood be upon us and on our children”) who are responding to an urge in conformity with our Master’s verdict of Luke 19:27, and when His feet again stand on earth, the money changers will once and for all be thrown out of His temple. “In that day there shall be no more the Canaanite in the house of Yahweh of Hosts.” (Zechariah 14:21) All students of Bible prophecy recognize this blithering prattle of interdependence as naught but preparation for the gathering of all nations to the battle of the Great Day of Yahweh, the Almighty.” (Revelation 16:14)

As Haman fell into the pit he digged, and was forced to pay honor to the enemy he had sworn to hang, so one day will these Canaanites in our midst. “Behold, I will make them of the synagogue of Satan, which say they are Jews and are not, but do lie; behold, I will make them to come and worship before thy feet, and to know that I have loved thee.” (Revelation 2:9; 3:9) Yahweh also promises, “I will feed them that oppress thee with their own flesh and they shall be drunken with their own blood, as with sweet wine; and all flesh shall know that I, Yahweh, am thy Saviour and thy Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.” (Isaiah 49:26) Isaiah is here speaking of the counterfeit race of the serpent seed, who are today oppressors of the modern Children of Israel, the Anglo-Saxon, Germanic, Scandinavian, Celtic, Nordic peoples of the earth.

Isaiah further prophesies in chapter 49:23; “They shall bow down to thee with their face toward the earth, and lick up the dust of thy feet; and thou shalt know that I am Yahweh.” However, our deliverance from our Satanic oppressor is contingent on the last key phrase. It will not happen until we recognize our Sovereign and, as a nation, turn to Him once more in humiliation and repentance, and accept His righteous Law as the law of our land. May Yahweh speed the day!!!!
